The defeated hope for liberty furned to a mad desire to riot. Buildings were fired, and the convictaought to go over the walls in the dense smoke screen which issued from the burning buildings. Spirited fire, however, turned them back, and they raped through the ward amashraged through the yard smash-everything on which they could lands.

State Troopers Rushed.

Meanwhile, the prison siren wailed forth its note of warning, a message which was relayed quickly to the barracks of the State troopers at Oneida and Pulsaki, whence at least 50 troopers were rushed to the prison to reinforce the guards. All local police were hurried to the gates to stand guard outside in case the convicts effected an escape.

A fire alarm was turned in and fire apparatus was dispatched from Syraeuse to ald the local department in extinguishing the blazing buildings in the prison yard. Finding it difficult to reach the fires with streams of water thrown over the walls, a local fire engine rammed the high stone wall of the prison in an attempt to break a way through to the blaze. It failed and was ignited in the attempt, burning just outside the wall. As fast as hose lines were strung through the streets, conferedates and sympathizers of the convicts cut them in several places, rendering them useless. The local unit of the New York National Guard was turned out and joined with the local police in patrolling the streets, with special attention to the hose lines of the battling firemen.

and, who yesterday accepted the task of forming a new government to succeed that of Raymend Poincare, spent eight hours today in efforts to form a cabinet and then proceeded to Elysee Palace to report his progress to President Doumergue.

M. Briand has found the task a difficult one and it was predicted in well-informed circles that he would be unable to present his list of ministers to the president of the republic before Monday afternoon at the earliest. The pivotal point in the new premier's effort is to enlarge his majority in the Chamber of Deputies by including a minister from the Radical-Socialist group. This unit had a representative in the cabinet—the ministry of the interior—from 1923 until the armistic cabinet was constituted by Poincare.

Difficulty on Radical Seen.

The awaiting of a post to a radical would apparently mean either casting Andre Tardieu, spokesman for the Moderates and a political power in France or "edging" him see another post, necessarily secondary to that of the interior.

The Moderates balked at even such an important post as minister of justice, which carries with it automatically the vice premiership, demanding that if Tardieu left the interior he should go either to the war or finance posts. The matter was still undecided tonight, but it seemed certain that Tardieu would, with Cheron and Loucheur, ministers of finance and labor, respectively, in the late Poincare ministry, form the backbone of the new cabinet.

Entire Revision Unlikely.

Many of those of the further left wing have demanded entire revision of the cabinet, but it seemed probable tonight the retired government would form the groundwork for the new. M. Briand remarked significantly tonight. "When ships are at sea one doesn't change the entire crew just because the captain is ill and has given up the command."

This would indicate that, with The Hague conference on reparations beginning early in August, he desires men about him familiar with the problems which have crowded them selves upon the government during the last few weeks.

The condition of M. Poincare today was said to be stationary. He spent a calm night and rested well. His physicians are holding enf from any official declarations until a consultation on Tuesday, when the date of the expected operation will be decided.

However, the District established another record festerday, in recording the lowest number of accidents for a single day; the only accident reported by the police was that in which the Edelschein child was fatally injured.

ported by the police was that in which the Edelschein child was fatally injured.

The day's total of arrests by the police of the fourteen precincts and the Traffic Bureau likewise set a new low level yesterday to stand since the police war against violators of traffic regulations was started on June 26. Only 68 arrests on all traffic charges were reported for the day, more than half of the charges being speeding, with reckless driving running a close second. Police also included in these arrests five drivers operating automobiles without permits.

Four charges were lodged against John M. Monty, a soldier whose home address is Tobyhanna, Pa. He was arrested by Motorcycle Policeman R. A. Cunningham, of the Traffic Bureau, and held in a cell at the Eighth Precinct on charges of operating a motorcycle without a permit, driving a motorcycle without head license tags, operating a motorcycle without a tandem attachment.

CESSION IS PROHIBITED

Santiago, Chile, July 28 (A.P.) .standing dispute over the province of Tacha and Arica between Chile and Peru was made public today.

Beside providing further details for the relations between the two countries, it stated emphatically that no part of the territroy covered in the general treaty could be coded to a third power, which apparently would block the strong Belivian desire to regain an outlet to the Pacific.

The text of the protocol reads:

"The governments of Chile and Peru agree to subscribe to a complementary protocol to the treaty signed on the same date.

"First: The governments of Chile and Peru cannot under the previous agreement cede to a third power the whole or any part of the territories mentioned in the treaty of that date. The territories will remain under their respective sovereignities and, because of this provision, it is prohibited to construct on them new international railway lines.

today, when, for the first time since 1879, Peru and Chile exchanged binding promises of friendship, removing one of the last remaining menaces to peace is South America.

President Ibanes signed the treaty of friendship and made an eloquent gesture in conformity with its spirit in conferring upon President Legula, of Peru, the Order of Merit, highest honor of Chile.

The treaty was reached only after months of negotiations and with the friendly participation of the United States Government through Ambassadors Culbertson and Moore. The only dissenting voice has been that of Bolivia, which claims that as long as she is dependent upon a foreign power for a sea outlet her national independence will be insecure.

Razran, U. S. S. R., July 28 (A.P.).—
After a 300-mile journey down the Volga from Nishni on the Soviet government steamer Akademik Tomiryazev, the unofficial American delegation to Russia arrived here today and was greeted enthusiastically by local officials and townsfolk.

To offset the torrid heat male members of the party are wearing Tolstoyan linen blouses and white trousers, while the ladies are trying to keep cool in light homespun peasant dresses and leather sandals. This attre gives them somewhat of a true proletarian aspect which greatly pleases the inhabitants. Often the Americans are greeted as "tovarish" (comrade) being mistaken for real Communists.

Because the American delegation, which collectively is estimated to represent more than $100,000,000, was 60 cents short in payment of the wine bill at a recent meal, the Communist administration aboard the boat has decided to institute an entirely new system of bookkeeping, which in the future will insure them receiving every kopeck due them by the rich Americans.

Tensity in Relationship Is Still Felt, but Fear of Strife Passes. TROTZKY GROUP CRITICAL

Danger of war between China and Russia appears to have passed, al-though tensity in the relations between Moscow and Nanking undoubtdly will continue for some time. Soviet officials are not taking seri-usly yesterday's statement by Chang nulling Soviet rights on the Chinese Eastern Railway and regards as only a temporary measure the appointent of a Chinese citizen as head is willing to negotiate peace, while in reality her object is to precipitate foreign intervention, which would unquestionably affect Soviet rights unfavorably.

Meanwhile, the government here has been informed that a regiment of Chinese troops has rebelled in Furisdam, near Harbin, and also that 450 Chinese soldiers have deserted on the Fogran-Itchnaya front. Unexpected and startling is the extreme attitude adopted by the followers of Leon Trotzky, exiled former chief of the Red army, toward the Soviet's controversy with China.

The Trotzkyists, who are branded as allies of Chinan Kai-shak, president of China, are contending that no provocation occurred in the ousting of Russian officials from the Chinese Eastern Rallway, that China merely took what was coming to her, that the Soviet government was itself anxious for conflict for the purpose of establishing more firmly its rights on the railroad and thereafter to sell its interests under advantageous circumstances, and that the Soviet has been following a colonial policy of the worst kind in Manchuria.

These antagonistic assertions will certainly compromise Trotzky's cause in Moscow. The Russians regard them as treasonous. One hundred and forty-four of Trotzky's followers formally announced today their resignation from the Trotzky movement and said they wished to Join the ranks supporting Josef Stalin, the "steel man" of the Soviet regime now in power.

In addition to the military experts, Secretary Wilbur, of the Interior Department, George Akerson, a secretary to the President, and Lieut. Comdr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, made the trip.

Despite the conferences, members of the party found some time for diversion and went horseback riding over the peaks of the Blue Ridge Mountains or sought recreation in horseshoe pitching, a sport just instituted at the presidential eamp.

For the first time since Mr. Hoover began making trips to the camp no women were in the party.

A REAL SOLUTION.

War clouds will continue to hover over Manchuria so long as the controversy between Russia and China over the Chinese-Eastern Railway remains unsettled. Russian impotence and China's refusal to be swayed by the Soviet ultimatum have produced a stalemate which threatens to develop into war through clashes on the border. If the tense situation prevails over an indefinite period there is almost certain to be serious trouble.

As both Russia and China wish to avert war if possible, the Kellogg peace pact has had no effect one way or the other. No outside pressure can solve this dispute between the Chinese and the Russians. Attempted intervention by the powers will do more harm than good and might force the two nations to resort to arms against each other. There is no confirmation of the report that Secretary Stimson intends to insist upon a return of the status quo ante in Manchuria. The mere hint that Mr. Stimson proposed to act as Manchurian umpire nettled Japan, caused misgivings in China and aroused resentment in Moscow.

China and Russia should be allowed to settle the controversy between themselves in their own way, and reestablishment of the status quo ante as a condition precedent is neither necessary nor desirable. The problem concerning the Chinese-Eastern Railway can be settled and should be settled without first attempting to compel China to reopen her gates to communist propaganda which she complains of and which she describes as designed to poison the minds of her people and undermine her institutions. No government can be expected to arbitrate the question of whether or not it will permit itself to be made the victim of propaganda designed for its destruc-

China has charged that the communist leaders have been using the Chinese-Eastern Railway as a medium for the spreading of propaganda and she has, therefore, taken steps to weed out the individual Russians responsible. The weeding process may have completely eliminated such Russians and thus resulted in practically taking the railway out of Russian management.

Under the circumstances, it is not probable that China would ever agree to reinstate communist representatives and thereby subject herself to the very dangers which she seeks to avoid. No communist promise would be entitled to more weight than the promise to refrain from propaganda which Russia gave in the treaty of 1924 and which China claims she has now violated.

China might claim the railway on the strength of the violation of the treaty of 1924, but there is no reason to believe that she will do so. No matter what provocation the Chinese may have had to confiscate property there is no support among the responsible Chinese leaders for any such policy. The Nationalists realize that the future of their movement and the welfare of their country must be based on international good faith and principles of justice. No short-sighted policy of ignoring Russian rights would find support with the Chinese people.

But China has rights under the treaty of 1924 with respect to the Chinese-Eastern Railway which must not be lost sight of. She has the reserved right to obtain full control of the railway and to completely eliminate Russian management and Russian participation in the road upon the payment of sum of money to be calculated on the basis of the cost of the road to Russia. After 80 years the Chinese-Eastern reserved option to buy Russia's share. and she should exercise that option now in view of the acute controversy.

A solution would, therefore, result from any fair arrangement whereby China keeps the road and obligates herself to pay a reasonable price. Fantastic figures based on past Russian operative expenses would be out of the question, for it has been said that Russia purposely spent exorbitant sums to prevent China from purchasing the Russian share in the road.

Perhaps agreement as to price would now be facilitated through the fact that Russia would have to accept whatever reasonable price China offered. Chinese terms of payment would control and, pending acceptance, China would continue to operate the Chinese-Eastern.

SHIPPING PROGRESS.

The American merchant marine is not as large as the country would like to have it, but when the difficulties under which American shipping interests operate are considered, its progress in recent years is remarkable. A clear picture of the present status of the commercial fleet flying the American flag is presented in a report from the bureau of research of the United States Shipping

In 1914 there was a total of 112 vessels of less than 600,000 gross tons operating in fifteen foreign and five noncontiguous services. Today the American fleet employed on established lines of trade consists of 671 vessels of more than 3,865,000 gross tons. This is an increase of nearly 500 per cent in numbers and nearly 550 per cent tonnage. The Government, acting through the Shipping Board, should be credited with large share of this improvement. At one time the Shinning Board had under its jurisdiction 4,500 ships of more than 17,500,000 gross tons. The tonnage has now been re duced to 3,280,000 and the number of ships to 595, only 229 of which are in active servive. Sixty-six per cent of the present fleet is now under private ownership.

American ships carried in 1928 two-fifths of the total ocean-borne trade of this country. In value the portion of goods carried in American bottoms was one-third. Twenty-eight per cent of the passengers transported patronized American ships These figures offer sharp contrast with those of a decade ago. The average trade carried in American ships was little more than 10 per cent in the decade ended in 1914, while for the decade ended last June it averaged 36 per cent. The gain appears still more pronounced when we consider that our foreign trade between 1905 and 1914 had an annual average value of $300,000,000 compared with an average of $2,600,000,000 in he decade 1920-29. Commerce with other nations has increased more than 700 per cent in that time and the merchant fleet has developed faster than trade.

Other principal nations engaged in handling American commerce on the seas are England, Norway, Japan, Italy, Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and France. Approximately 70 per cent of the entire water-borne commerce of the United States was carried in direct trade. The remainder was carried by foreign vessels plying be ween American and foreign ports not located in their own countries. English ships will no doubt always carry a portion of the trade between that country and America and German ships a portion of the commodities exchanged with that country, but it is to be noped that American ships will replace as soon as possible those foreign vessels engaged in indirect trade out of American If the merchant fleet continues to develop as it has in the last ten years, the disinterested foreign carriers can be largely eliminated.

DECLINING BIRTH RATE.

There is no cause for alarm in the report of the Department of Commerce that the birth rate declined and the death rate rose in 1928. There is still a wide margin beween the birth and death rates. Statistics births per 1.000 population has been delining much more rapidly than of deaths. Nevertheless, there is a constant increase in population.

The figures of the Department of Com nerce are based on the records of 38 States. In 33 of those States birth rates were lower in 1928 than for the previous year. average birth rate was 19.7 per 1.000 compared with 20.7 in 1927. This brings the birth-rate reduction to more than 25 per cent since 1915.

On the other hand, the increase from 11.4 to 12.3 deaths per 1,000 persons last year does not represent a general tendency. This record as well as the higher infant mortality rate is no doubt due to such abnormal condi tions as the influenza epidemic last winter. The general trend of the American death rate is downward. Since 1910 the reduction has been from 15 per 1,000 to 11.4 in 1927. Such years as 1918 when influenza was at its height are exceptions to the general downward trend. In that year the death rate soared to 18.3.

The fact that both births and deaths are becoming fewer should be a source of satisfaction to the American people. The United States is not unique in this respect. Almost every country for which statistics are available shows a similar tendency. England France and Germany have lower birth rates than the United States and the death rates of England and Germany are similar to tha of this country. Economic conditions have influenced limitation of families and the advance of science makes longer life possible The net result is to place a higher value on human life. Even though the coming generation is relatively fewer in number, the chances of the individual for survival and for a comfortable existence will be multi-

The question of increasing population is almost invariably connected with that of food supply. Improvement in methods of production and the general development of science preclude any necessity at present of worrying over the future sources of food. There is every indication also that the probreverts to China without payment to lem will be simplified by a continued natural cultural researchers, but in the meantime China has decline in the birth rate. This means that Government.

WHAT OF IT?

Add to the "what of it" records the 87 hour 31 minute run of the speedboat Bogie from New Orleans to St. Louis. Fifty-nine years ago the packet Robert E. Lee in a race made famous in song and legend with the Natchez churned her way between the same two cities in 91 hours 14 minutes and the record has since stood. The pilot of the Bogie now claims a new record for the run. But what of it?

The Bogie is a slim, sleek, mahogany speedboat 26 feet long and powered with a 150-horsepower motor. The Robert E. Lee was a palatial packet powered with steam and thrust through the water by paddlewheels. The Bogie was designed and built for speed. The Robert E. Lee was built to carry cotton and other commodities on her lower deck and the dandles of the time and their ladies in her cabins. The Bogie and the Robert E. Lee are not comparable in any respect, and the mere fact that it took a speedboat to lower the latter's record stands s tribute to her prowess.

The days of the racing packets are gone, and no one sheds a tear over their passing. The Nation would not, if it could, discard its modern transportation machine to return to that of 50 years ago. The dash of the Bogie up the Mississippi and the scant margin by which it lowered the Lee's record may indicate that progress has not been so great after all, but as for the claim of a new record, "What of it?"

RESEARCH IN AGRICULTURE

By OLIVER McKEE, Jr., In the Boston Transcript

Basic research in agriculture will be one f the features of the program of the present administration to bring up American agriculture to economic parity with other indus-Agricultural research has lagged behind the search for new facts and principles in the chemical, electrical, engineering and other fields of industry. It is a well known fact that research has been the basis for the great expansion of these industries in recent years, and the Washington administration proposes to place much greater emphasis than ever before on the research problems of the American farmer.

The Department of Agriculture has faced neretofore one very serious difficulty in put ting fundamental farm research on a par with research in industry. The difficulty has been that its technical men have not been free to make their own program. One by one, every item in the department's proposed expendiures must be explained both to the Budget Bureau and to the appropriations committees of the Senate and the House. It is never possible to say in advance what the results of a particular research problem will be and these details can not be furnished ahead of time to the committees of the budget and of Congress. Spokesmen for the department have found it anything but an easy matter to con vince the lay mind that such studies are indispensable and, like the proverbial man from Missouri, the average congressman needs to be shown.

Secretary Hyde would like to have a lump um appropriated on research, available un til it is expended. He would like to be able to push ahead a given line of study uninterruptedly, even though radical changes in method should prove necessary. Under the item-by-item appropriation system now in effect more than a year passes before funds are available after a proposed plan of research is drawn up. There is no elasticity in method, with the result that it is hard to carry out a research program effectively.

The research program desired should be along several lines. It should cover, for one thing, the general basic principles underlying agriculture. Regional studies should also be permitted. A case in point is the threat which the corn borer is making against the fundamental product of the States in the valley of the upper Mississippi. Regional studies of this kind may be regarded as the only effective insurance against regional economic upsets. A comprehensive research in recent years show that the number of problem is also needed in the cotton belt if that industry is to maintain its place as one the important elements in keeping our trade balance on the right side of the ledger. The administration has already sought the advice of research experts outside the Government, and its program will therefore represent the best thought of men outside as well as inside the department.

Congress has shown a disposition of late oward increasing liberality, and in addition o increasing appropriations directly available, it has enlarged the Federal endowmen of the State agricultural experimental stations. The Purnel act, approved in 1925, accomplishes this. Under this bill, State agricultural experiment stations have been able to launch many new lines of research as well as to strengthen research projects already going forward. The McNary-McSweeney forestry act may likewise be cited as further evidence of the general interest of Congress in research. The grants of money will extend over a ten-year period.

Research has laid the foundation for the control of the corn borer, one of the most destructive enemies of the American farmer. The work was really started in a small rented laboratory building in Arlington, Mass. and here it was that there were launched the first serious studies of the corn bores made in the United States. For several years the Bay State was the scepe of most of the work. Later, the investigations were extended to other parts of the country. And for three years past the Department of Agriculture has called entomologists and scientists from all over the country to meet in Washington for conferences. ings have provided a clearing house for the exchange of information and data on the

Another recent development has been coton fiber research. This has led the way to better marketing practices. Congress has given the department increased funds for research in the fiscal year that began on July 1, and the emphasis which Secretary Hyde has placed on the importance of more funds for this purpose will lead, it is safe to say, to still further expansions in the agrilem will be simplified by a continued natural | cultural research program of the Federal

There Will Be No War if Common Men Laugh When the Boss Savs "Sic 'Em." By ROBERT QUILLEN

A MERICA produces more than her people can consume. She needs a foreign market. Common sense, as well as common decency, prompts her to be friendly with other nations.

The American factory worker prospers because the article he roduces is bought by another worker on the other side of an ocean. And the other worker prospers because the article he produces is bought by the American. If these two men should meet, they would be courteous to another and might become friends. Their interests are mutual. They need one another.

But a few men called statesmen, who think of peace and war be cause that is their trade, and are filled with dreads unknown to other men, exchange bitter notes because of some wrong done by a few irresponsible individuals and at last lose their reason and declare war.

With them it is a kind of heroic game, but they play it from afar. Their pens scratch on paper—a safe business that does not endanger their skins-and at once the world is changed.

The two workers who were friendly in spirit because they had need of one another are now enemies. They must prepare to kill one another. They have no desire to fight. They much prefer going on with their work and living their normal lives. But the statesmen have planned a war and the workers must see it through. The workers—the common men in both countries—desire peace. Millions of them-strong, level-headed men, hate war and the makers of war, and yet they march like lambs to the slaughter. How strange that millions should act against their will to please few! How strange that friendly men should become enemies because a few statesmen write with pens on paper! Statesmen make war because they know the millions will fight at their command. If they were not sure of the millions, they would speak softly. We have republics in place of monarchies, but still one ruler says to another: "Watch your step, or I shall send my boys to kill your boys." Always the fighting is done by friendly men who obey a master and kill reluctantly to escape punishment. How can the mad business be ended? ell, how could statesmen make war if men refused to fight?

The people are all-powerful. No force on earth can drive them if they simply refuse to obey. "Passive resistance" is the weapon of the people. Jesus suggested it; Tolstoy preached it; India's great Gandhi proved its effectiveness. When the people go calmly about their affairs and refuse to obey orders, rulers are powerless. Let the people of the earth-the common, working, poor people -pledge themselves to keep the peace and refuse to slaughter one nother and war will end.

Cock fighting is great sport for the men who own the cocks. The men make wagers and win money. But their big talk would come to nothing if the cocks had sense enough to refuse to fight. (Copyright, 1929.)

N spite of wars and rumors of wars, China is giving thought to constructive work for the future, especially among the children of the vast nation; and a comprehensive campaign of child launched under the generalship of Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, of Washington.

The program is being sponsored by the Chinese Child Welfare Association, Inc., and the Chinese Society, both of which have headquarters in New York; and Mrs. Dougherty, who has had long experience in child welfare work in Washington, has been invited to conduct this tremendously important experiment. She will sail for China in September and her purpose is to devote several months to building up an organization among the Chinese, which can carry on the work permanently. There are hundreds of men and women in China, who have been educated in American, British or continental universities and who are imbued with the Occidental idea of working for tomorrow through the children of today. Among them Mrs. Dougherty expects to find willing assistants and to develop organizers who

Mrs. Dougherty's plan is to start by staging demonstrations of methods of conserving the health of children in large centers. Her headquarters will be in Nanking, center of activity of the new Nationalist government and eventually to be the capital of the nation.

It was largely through the influence of Mr. Owen Roberts, a prominent New York banker, who is president of the Chinese Child Welfare Association, that Mrs. Dougherty was persuaded to enlist as a volunter worker. Mr. Roberts has spent much time in China and, indeed, has a palace in Peking, in which he is as much at home as in New York. The head of the Chinese Society is Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, who is likewise tremendously interested in the project.

Mrs. Dougherty is doubly fitted for this tremendously inspiring job because she has lived in the Orient and thas friends all over China. Her late husband, Capt. Dougherty, U. S. N. was at one time naval attache of our legation in Peking and filled the same important role in Tokye.

For a number of years Mrs. Dougherty has been on the board of several of the most important child welfare organized the first Inaugural Charity Ball, given for half a dozen children's charities, when President Harding was inaugurated and since then has put over two more with increasing success, being chairman of the committee for the great ball, held at the Washington auditorium, on the night resident Hoover was inaugurated which brought nearly $50,000 to the offers of several organizations for the sid of children. Moreover, ahe managed the Thrift Shop, which was organized last fall as a permanent "benefit" for several of the same charities and which will be reopened in the saturn.

French Girl's Engagement

Miss Clair Heilmann Has Been Frequent Visitor Since Removal.

Is Announced

News of much interest to Washington was received yesterday from Burlingame, Calif., from the French Conuul General and Mmc. Helimann, who have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Clair Helimann, to Mr. St. George Burke, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Burke, of Dallygugan House, County Galway, Ireland. The wedding will take place in the near future.

Miss Heilmann is one of the two teilmann sisters—Helene being the ther—who passed the winter here everal seasons ago and made many and the diplomats reimann sisters—Heiene being the other—who passed the winter here several seasons ago and made many friends, not only among the diplomats and officials but also among the residential set. They are more associated with Washington than with California, for every year since they really left town they have returned to pass many months visiting their friends here and at summer resorts. Miss Clair Heilmann is an expert horsewoman and was more often seen on the bridle path of Rock Creek Park than her sister, though both rode a great deal. Many acquaintances who could not distinguish the sisters, who look very much alike, would say on meeting them in the park, "Oh, you must be Clair. I just watched you take that jump."

Miss Helene Heilman has been in Washington recently visiting her friend, Mrs. Elilot Strauss, formerly Miss Lydia Archbold, but Miss Clair remained at home this season.

Reasons for support of the present left-turn system are found in the committee report. It is pointed out that, in the opinion of the taxicab drivers, through traffic always should have the right of way and that turn-ing traffic should be delayed. In the opinion of the drivers, further, the present system is easier for the traffic opinion of the drivers, further, the present system is easier for the traffic officers in that the latter are not hemmed in by traffic to such an extent that they are not able to direct it efficiently. In other words, say the taxi men, the rotary turn makes for better visibility on the part of the officer handling traffic, which, in turn, makes for greater safety.

that the total fooms in the country is 8 per cent less than before the World War and the producing capacity of these looms has been further reduced 13 per cent through reduction in working hours.

The workers contend that lowering wages would remedy the depression, said to be due mainly to the failure of the Lancashire industry to adapt itself to new conditions of the world trade brought about by the war and also to the tremendous overcapitalization of the mills in the boom period following the armistice, when a world scarcity of cotton goods facilitated such artificial inflations.

The new labor government and Miss Margaret Bondfield face a real test in this dispute. Doubtless the ministry will continue its efforts for peace, since it would cause serious injury to the prestige of the new government to have such a disastrous labor struggle at the beginning of its career.

Blame for the crisis was placed squarely on the employers in a long statement issued tonight by Sir Horace Wilson, permanent secretary of the Ministry of Labor. It was said

On the other hand the employers were alleged to have refused to withdraw their notices or to await the result of a government inquiry. It appeared that some sections of the workers were willing to allow their representatives to negotiate with the employers on the question of reduced wages but the consent of all employes could not be obtained, hence all negotiations broke down.

THE DOUBLE - EDGAR WALLACE

SYNOPSIS.

Dick Staines, in love with beautiful Mary Dane, a nurse, concludes that the sirl has a dangerous double when he mistakes her for a mysterious intruder in Walter Derrick's house. The double, he later discovers, is Mary Devilliers, of Capetown, Africa, but what she seeks in the house where one murder has already taken place remains a mystery. Lordy Brown, who might have told, lies dead. And then one night from his viril in Tommy Weald's addoining house a bell, warning him of an intruder, summons Dick. He sees a shadowy figure and hears a woman's tartiled whisper before a door alams in his face. Dick steps back, takes one jump, and hurth his shoulder against the door. With a deafening crack it bursts open, and he is in the room.

"Can you remember any more about that pump?"
In spite of his annoyance he laughed.
"Yes, I can. I could describe it so faithfully that you could make one yourself. It is not like any other vacuums, because in the middle it has a small long steel needle. We only discovered that when we were examining it the other day. There's a tiny little screw near the handle, and the needle extends itself down beyond the cup. My superintendent thinks that it was used to lift some circular object, and the needle was employed to find the center. That's all I can tell you, and I have told you too much."

And then she came back to the resent. "Can you stay till tomorrow night?"
He had to leave in the morning, he told her, sometime about lunch. Earlier if there was troubla in Derick's house. He had left two men there without consulting that gentle."

"Can you guarantee that?"
She shook her head.
"I can't be responsible for my double. Tommy says they found the fingerprint of the Slough murderer."
"What do you know about the Slough murderer?" he demanded.
"I know very little, except that the man who committed the murder was named Herman Lavinski, a naturalized, Russian. And there's Tommy looking positively radiant. I told him to fetch me."
"Wait a moment." In his agitation."

and when this was done.

"No, sir. He may have had a conviction abroad. I will put through an inquiry to Paris. I'm not so sure they keep fingerprists."

Dick wasn't sure either.

This fact was patent: there was a man called Lavinski, rud the description that had been handed down to the archives of Scotland Yard. It was no invention of Mary Dane's; he would have been surprised if it had been.

It always gave him a pang to see Tommy and the figir together, and he rejoined them on the beach with no great pleasure. Mr. Cornfort was asleep. He saw the unshaven chairman sitting on a public bench smoking a clay pipe and at peace with the world.

"What is the name of that beast of burden of yours?"

"If you mean our chairman, you're being very disrespectful," she said severely. "His name is Henry."

"Does he ever speak?"

"He has been known to ask for his the process of the said. And then: "Mr. the she disappeared.

"I really don't think that we want to discuss the matter, Mary," he said testily. "I mean to say, it's perfectly private between you and me."
"But it isn't perfectly private between you and me," she said. "It's perfectly public—at least, you wanted to make it so."
He rose with dignity.
"I'm going back to town," he said. She drew off the little emerald circlet from her finger.
"Take this with you."
He wilted under the implied threat.
"Don't be perfectly ghastly," he said. "Put it on, put it on!" Then suddenly he bent down and seized her hand. "I told you that ring didn't fit you. I'll have it tightened up tomorrow, old lady."
"Don't call me 'old lady,' Tommy," she said wearlly. "You know, you make me feel all curls and crinolines."
Tommy looked at his watch rather importantly. He had risen from the depth of gloom to the height of confience in the course of a minute.
"I'll dash up to the notel—you won't come to dinner?"
"I'm dining with Mr. Staines," she said.
Tommy winced at that. "I really don't think that we want there wasn't," he said, "after you had told me."

She laughed softly.
"That implies a very touching faith in me! Do you like the idea of my marrying Tommy."

He drew a long breath.
"I think it's horrible. Not that Tommy isn't a very good fellow," he said guardedly, "but—"
"Why is it horrible?" She looked at him, so intently that he almost forgot that he sat there in view of thousands of children and nursemaids, mothers and papsa, to say nothing of itherant photographers.
"Because I love you."
It didn't sound like his voice speaking that. She did not move her eyes from his; they were very searching, sager eyes. He had seen pain in them, and that made them more precious, "When did you discover this?—at Victoria?—have I provoked you into this declaration?"

He shook his head.

Burning Passenger Bus

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., July 28.—A perfectly functioning bucket brigade late Saturday night saved from destruction by fire one of the large passenger buses operated by the Eastern Line between Roanoke and Winchester. The driver, G. L. Burton, attributed the fire in the mechanical part of the truck to over-heated brakes.

For a brief time destruction of the vehicle was threatened, but bystanders at a filling station, near where the fire was discovered and where the truck stopped, quickly formed a bucket brigade and effectively combatted the flames. The bus was then driven into a field to await the arrival of repairmen. The half dozen passengers were brought to Staunton in other conveyances.

Special to The Washington Post.
Staunton, Va., July 28.—Spiritualistic claims on the part of Madame Oglethorpe disappeared when she appeared in magistrate's court here Saturday, was fined $7$, and ordered to "move on" out of the reach of Augusta County officers.

The madame claimed to be a paimist, with a ready and usually plausible answer for every customer.

One patron to madame's tent told a story of unhappiness, and the palmist acquainted herself with the "news" that certain quilts and other bed coverings were responsible. She must turn these articles over to the soothsayer and thus the evil spirits would be dispelled.

No, the woman in distress could not burn the articles; she must deposit them with Madame Oglethorpe. This the client finally did; but later came to a realization that she had been tricked. Magistrate J. W. O'Rurke ordered the fortune-teller to return to the complainant the bed clothing. Petersburg, Va., July 28.—Appomattox bridge, one of the largest bridges

Judge Says Criticism Not Contempt Cause

Special to The Washington Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., July 28.—In the opinion of Judge Charles G. Baker, of the Monongalia Circuit Court, a court and its presiding judge are just as much subject to criticism and error of judgment as any other individual.

Judge Baker holds that a court is not infallible and therefore constructive criticism by a newspaper or an individual is not contempt as long as that criticism is not uttered in court and as long as it does not tend to break down the system of law enforcement or lower the dignity of the court or lower the dignity of the people for it.

Special to The Washington Post.
Staunton, Va., July 29.—The Rev.
Fitzhugh Clark was ordained and installed as pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Williamsville, Bath County, this morning at 11 o'clook.
A commission of Lexington Presbytery presided. It was composed of the Rev. J. T. McCutchan, of Warm Springs, who presided and preached the sermon; the Rev. A. J. Ponton, of Windy Cove, who delivered the charge to the pastor, and the Rev. L. H. Elkel, of Rockbridge, who delivered the people. The elder who served was George W. Wallace. Workmen at the Norfolk & Western shops, directly opposite the broken piers, were the first to discover the break. City authorities were notified, and, after a hurried inspection, Mayor Wilson and City Manager Morton ordered the bridge closed to traffic. Tests are being made to see how muchthe big structure is slipping and whether the break is growing larger.

The Appomattox Bridge was built in 1925 at a cost of nearly $700,000, of which the city of Petersburg paid nearly $300,000, and the railroads and Virginia Electric & Power Co. the remainder. It is considered one of the most beautiful bridges in Virginia. It is built of concrete and reinforced steel.

Today's True

Detective Story By VANCE WYNN Clue of the Pearl

ENRY GARWOOD, young and ated a fitney bus in the vicinry in Camden, N. J. He was popular and bore a good reputation.

One morning he picked up a pas-enger, started in the direction of senger, started in the direction of Haddonfield—and never came back.

There was no reason why he should voluntarily disappear. His finances were in good shape and he had no other known difficulties. The thing was a real mystery, and finally his body was found half buried under a mound in the Ellisburg woods.

He had taken a pretty good mental photograph of the prospective customer and he reported it to the police. They looked over the records at the City Hall and came to the control of the co character in Camden who was suspected of stealing automobiles. They went to this man's house—we shall call him Yost—but he was not at home. In his absence they made a search of his room and in that room they found three articles, a penknife, a purse and a pearl crucifix. All of these things had belonged to the murdered jitney driver. There might have possibly been room for a difference of opinion concerning the identity of the first two articles, but there was none whatever concerning the crucifix. It was a personal possession that Garwood prized highly and that he carried with him constantly.

On the strength of this find Yost was arrested. He admitted that he had stolen automobiles, but he sconded at the idea of having taken the life of the young jitney driver. When the body of the murdered man was found it was without shoes. This puzzled the police greatly. Then one of the friends of Garwood told them that he was sometimes in the habit of carrying money in his shoes. That furnished a reason for the disappearance of these articles of wear.

They made a second search of Yost's house, and this time they made a discovery of prime importance. In the kitchen, in a dark corner, they found the shoes belonging to the murdered man.

At this stage of the contest they determined to try a device which has always been a favorite of the French police. They determined to take the suspected man to the scene of the murder in order to observe the psychological effect of the environment upon him. In the meantime, they had found the sedan car that had been used by Garwood and this was connected with Yost in the suificant manner. That might have been convincing in itself, but the authorities were still anxious to note the effect the scene of the murder might have on the aisspect.

Prosecutor Wolverton was the leading spirit in these investigations, and he went along with Yost in the authorities were still anxious to note the effect the scene of the murder might have on the aisspect.

Lantern-Flies and Fireflies. Among the colorful insects of South America are the Brazil from their name that they were night filers, but such is not the case. measuring six inches from wing tip to wing tip.

The Chinese lantern fly is chiefly colored green or orange, and with its markings would be pretty were it not for the queer upcurve beginning where its nose should be. Some Chinese children catch this insect to keep in a box as a pet.

Lantern files do not give light, but nature—as we all know—has other creature which do. Among these are the firefiles or "lightning bugs" which make many a marsh and field sparkle as we pass along of an evening.

The best electric bulbs so far invented lose most of the power through heat, and men have yet to perfect a "cold light." The firefly, on the other hand, has used the secret of cold light for centuries and loses very little energy in the making of its light.

Scientists have busied themselves on the problem of the firefly. They have learned that the light becomes much more brilliant when placed in pure oxygen; but it quickly becomes dim when placed in the other gases which make up the air. For this reason, it is believed that the insect has some means of separating oxygen from air for use in producing its light.

Glow worms are the females and the young of the firefly family. They do not possess the wings which enable the full grown males to sport about the country side. The "railway beetles" of Paraguay give forth strong red lights from each end of the body and green lights from points between.

The Mayor of Philadelphia, in a ceremony attended by city officials and representatives of the Sparks-Withington Co., was presented with a piece of wood from the cak tree under which the Republican party was formed in Jackson, Mich., in 1854. The presentation was made by A. H. Riese, district manager for the Sparks-Withington Co., manufacturers of the Sparton radio, whose plants are located in Jackson where the oak still grows.

Riese, on behalf of Capt. Sparks, traced the history of the tree under whose branches the founders of the G. O. P. gathered 75 years ago. The gift to Mayor Mackey is a segment of the bough from which Gov. Fred W. Green. of Michigan, a former cabinet-maker, made three gavels, presenting them to Fresident Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house. The tree has been the scene of many exercises celebrating the foundation of the party. Its national importance has made it so valuable, that the Jackson municipal authorities have made it a civic property.

If you are one of those whose health is being undermined or whose nerves are being shattered by the "terrible noises of the radio," the United States Government sympathizes with you but, otherwise, it's just too bad.

VERY interesting type of garment has come into being this season, which is neither a tailleur, strictly speaking, nor is it the customary three-piece sports outfit, though it is intended primarily for mortuing wear.

It consists, essentially, of a jacquette, a blouse and a skirt—nothing very original in that, to be sure, but it must be seen to be appreciated.

Jacquette and skirt are both very short. Viewed from the rear, one would declare that it was a tailleur, but the difference is in the front treatment, for the jacquette, instead of being closed, as in a tailleur, is left open, and is usually cut away on curved lines.

The skirt may be rather simple

The skirt may be rather simple and tailored, or it may have a variety of volants, pleats, panels and what-not. Jacquette and skirt are usually of a mterial such as kasha. With this is worn a blouse or jumper somewhat more elaborate than we usually find with a tailleur or sports outfit. It may be worn over or under the skirt, and may have a sash. Others cross over in the front and tie at one side in a large bow. Collar and cuffs are necessarily very Collar and cuffs are necessarily very simple, for anything too frilly or Sooner and sooner—intelligent and elegant women are realizing the value of the matching bloomsis or culottes. Mag-Helly offers a perfectly charming idea in various shades of orange and red crepe de chine—with matching culottes, which show just beneath the hem of the skirt. We illustrated it for you today—do you approve?

IF JULY 29th is your birthday, the successful hours for you on this fay are from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., from 1 p. m. to 2:15 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger period is from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p. m.

The stimulating influences in force on this date assure a time of activity. They are too complex, however, to safely augur success or failure in any specific phase of life. It would be well not to rush into things without unusual preparation and thought. well not to rush into things without unusual preparation and thought.

Children born this July 20th will be incapable of amusing themselves, and they will have a keen desire for attention and a longing to be the center of attraction. They will take no pleasures in their own decisions until they are ratified by grown-up approval. Self-reliance will have to be an acquired trait.

Those of your type are cold on the

Those of your type are cold on the surface, but your nature is warmer, more sincere and capable of affection surface, but your nature is warmer, more sincere and capable of affection than most others—it needs understanding. If a woman, your character is strong, almost formidable, but at the same time soft and refined. You do not carry your heart on your sleeve, and you do not palayer, but you are very human and very understanding. Your quiet reserve—and dignity are merely protecting shields to an extremely sensitive nature. You feel things very keenly and secretly suffer a great deal because of imaginary alights. You do not ever force yourself in any way upon others. You do not try to impress, but you are always the same, always dependable and loyal, and above all, intensely honorable.

If a man, you are very intellectual and in a business way you should prove very successful. You are not a waster of time, and your judgments and decisions are founded on common-sense. You cannot be hurried in either a mental or physical way, but in your deliberate and calm manner, you are capable of planning and carrying through big things. You are, however, easily discouraged, and your failures are due to your giving up the ship when fair sailing is within your reach. This is due to pessimism and not cowardice.

RESORTS

A Tower in the Hills

The Wolgs (Kid) weight Friestadi Kauff

CE Elaine, lily maid of Ascalot, looked i her tower window across sunlit, emerald hills -and watched Lancelot, far below, riding along the brown, winding road.

Today maids, copper-tanned, gallop over the Virginia hills—or wield racquet or club on The Homestead courts and links—with modern Lancelots.

Now, both can satisfy their love of a tower view. Here at The Homestead, rendezvous of the smart world, has just been completed a new ten-story, fireproof Tower, equipped with every luxury that discriminating taste of the day can demand. In it are one hundred and one rooms with bath, overlooking the rolling Southern hills. Seventeen of these have salons, and all are furnished in the Early American period by Freeman Brothers and Marshall Field. The Tower has forty-seven loggias where one may rest and watch the gay life on the hotel grounds below. On the topmost story is a solarium completely outfitted for sun bathing. Three spacious lounging rooms on the main floor are equipped with Vita-glass. Yet the same Colonial charm and elegance which brought fame to The Homestead in the days of Washington and Jefferson, pervades this modern Tower.

Rooms in the new Tower addition are now ready for our guests.

Then there are the baths - as convenient to Tower guests as to all others. The mysterious, invigorating power of Virginia Hot Springs continues to bring new vitality to the thousands of guests who come to The Homestead, wearied by business and social cares. When desired, special hydro-therapeutic treatments are prescribed by skilled physicians on the hotel staff.

A stay at The Homestead, high in the new Tower or closer to the heart of the hills, is a pastime of beauty, rest and pleasure for those who need a delightful change.

A well illustrated booblet will be sent upon request.

Ring Interest Shifting to Chicago

Mandell Risks Title Friday Against Canzoneri.

Stribling and Risko Have Matches for This Week.

New YORK, July 28 (A.P.).—The mid-West again takes the play away from the East in fistic entertainment for the coming week, offering another titular defense this stige.

tertainment for the coming wees, our fefing another titular defense this time at Chicago.

Sammy Mandell, the "Rockford Bheik," puts his world's lightweight championship in jeopardy at Chicago on Friday night when he tackles Tony Canzoneri, of New York, one-time king of the featherweights, in a ten-round bout.

Sammy is hoping for a little more luck than Joe Dundee had at Detroit jast week when the Baltimore Italian dropped his welterweight crown into dackie Field's lap via a foul.

Mandell is one of the cleverest performers in the ring, as metropolitan fiffis are ready to testify after seeing him cut Jimmy McLarnin to pleces here last year in his last defense of his 135-pound title. Fans who saw that fight are not inclined to give Unanoneri much of a chance to deshrone the Rockford Flash, although the New York Italian has been practically invincible since he put on a few pounds and deserted the featherweights after his losing battle with Andre Routis for the title.

Ray Miller Meets

Vincentini.

On the same card, Ray Miller, lefthook artist who appeared last year to be well on his way to a title

Chicago followers of the cauliflowers also are to have their first glimpse meets Steve Smith, a better-thanaverage 126-pounder in a ten round bout on Tuesday night.

W. L. Young Stribling and Johnny
Risko also are to swing into action in the Mid-West. Stribling meets Babe.
Hunt, Ponca City, Okia., heavyweight,

LEVELAND made it three straight over the Nationals yesterday and sent the Washington Club into a seventh-place tie with the White Sox, who idied, by taking a free-hitting game at the Clark Griffith Stadium, 9 to 6. For eight frames, the Nats, despite the fact that they were facing southpaw pitching much of the time, bat—INSERT A—

In the timed in the indicators are that he's going to be very, very hard to lift as long as that lad has a hand in its defense, and the timed in ming, when Hayes drive hit Umpire Guthrie and cost a run and changed the whole complexion of the game, might have turned in victory.

Fifteen hits were credited the Indian club-swingers, with the Nats pounding three Tribe flingers for 13. One way of figuring the difference is to say that the winners' margin was two homers—one by Bib Falk in the fourth, with the sacks empty, and another by Averill in the ninth with two on the bases. These accounted for four runs and meant the difference between victory and defeat to the Georgia Avenue aggregation.

In the fourth, Falk's homer, Hodapp's triple and L. Sewell's single put the Tribe one up again, but the Nationals matched this in their half, which saw the end of Ferrell and the beginning of Melburn Shoffner's term. The letter, a rookle left-hander.

Almost the Naked Truth Public Parks TILDEN WINS OVER

EW YORK, July 27—As nearly every one expected, the French Davis Cup Team contained altogether too much Cochet for the American challengers to assimilate, and the premier tennis trophy will repose in Paris for at least another year. The United States Team was betten clearly, but not disgraced by any means. The magnificent victory of Van Ryn and Allison, in the doubles, and George Lott's courageous stand against the well-night invincible Cochet today augur well for America's tennis future, in which these three youngsters seem destined to play important parts.

Even though he was beaten in both his starts, few will quarrel with the action of the selection committee in naming Lott for the team in preference to Frank Hunter. Long Meeting Opens Today At Spa Diavolo Carries Top Weight in $10,000 Saratoga.

Bateau. Sun Edwin Also Backed for Big Purse.

By GEORGE DALEY.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 28 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The clans of racing gathered here and are still gathering for the summer meeting tomorrow, and conscious this evening tomorrow, and conscious this evening to the state of the stat racing gathered here and are still gathering for the summer meeting tomorrow, and conscious this evening of a great and eneryating heat. They are thinking horse and talking weather. Thunder has been rumbling in the distance and a shower, which might bend if not break the heat wave, would be welcome even if it brought in its wake a heavy track for the running of the Saratoga Handicap and the Flash Stakes.

Nine horses are named for the twenty-ninth running of the Saratoga Handicap over one mile and a quarter and in the absence of Fetes Wrack, the Wheatley Stable's Diavolo is top weight under 123 pounds and the talked-of favorite. Jimmy Fitz-simmons was smiling this afternoon, not an unusual thing for him, but there was a particular reason, as he will saddle Distraction to bear Diavolo company, and he loves the mud in case rain comes. The entry will be hard to beat whether the track be fast, as now promised, or slow.

Of the others, Display and Sunfire, which will run as the Salmon-Wilson entry, are most favored to carry off the $10,000 prize. Display showed a return to his top form in running Misstep to a head in the Arlington Handicap ten days ago, with Sun Edwin. Osmand and others of quality behind him. Since then he has worked a comfortable mile and a quarter in 2:09 and is ready if in the humor to race as he can race.

Bateau, a daughter of Man o' War, is the hope of Waiter M. Jeffords. She is not overburdened at 118 pounds and is sure to be a factor if she runs back to her race in the Suburban Handicap, when she beat Petee Wrack a head, to say nothing of Toro and Sunfire.

George Odom also thinks well of Sun Edwin, in spite of his defeat in the Arlington Handicap. The track out in Chicago did not seem to suit him and he has been training nicely and showing all his speed since coming back. The finish promises to be as hot as the weather.

32 Entries Drawn

So many 2-year-olds are quartered here that the last race for maidens attracted 32 entries, so that it was split, making a seven-race program, luding a steeplechase, to inaugurate the meeting in brilliant manner. This means three races for 2-year-olds, as the Flash Stakes of $5,000 will be run as the third race, with some of the topnotchers en-raced.

with some of the topnotchers engaged:

H. P. Whitney's Prometheus is preferred in the Flash. He ran second to Grattan in the Great American Stakes, beating Sarazen II, and then third to Sarazen and Kokatam in the Tremont Stakes, when getting 10 pounds. He has a pull of 15 pounds over both Sarazen and Grattam tomorrow, and, with an even break, is likely to carry off the spoils. Young Jimmy Rowe makes no secret of the fact that he has been training well.

All of 2,000 horses are stabled here, and they are worth well over $5,000,000, which gives some idea of the vastness of this business and sporting venture.

As a matter of fact, I look for $\frac{1}{5}$ (2000) horses are stabled ere, and they are worth well over $\frac{1}{5}$ (2000,000), which gives some idea of here vastness of this business and bording venture.

The yearlings alone which will be soft at auction while the meeting is in progress under the direction of id Tranter, are worth in the neighborhood of $2.000,000. Already 560 if these year-old coits and fillies have een catalogued and may well command that amazing total. The number to be sold will be less than last ear on the pants for the good as well as a ears, and are likely to sell as well as a ear ago when the total reached $1.753,603.

Money seems to be no object when the comes for amplying the volume forces.

Money seems to be no object when it comes to gambling in young horse flesh. The financiers will open wide their pockets in the hope of getting a great horse. At the sales last year the record price of all time was paid for a yearling when C. V. B. Cushman purchased a colt named New Brooms, which has not started as yet, for $75.000. It is not likely that this may will be exceeded.

I N one of the best pitching duels seen in the Capital City League this season, the Lionels defeated the Calhouns yesterday, 3 to 1, to keep pace with the Vic Sport Shop and O'Brien Nines, which also gained victories at the expense of the Murphy-Ames and Potomac Nines, respectively. The Langleys upset the dope by defeating the Ty Cobbs, 11 to 7.

As the result of a 17-to-12 verdict over the Potomacs, the O'Briens kept their record clean over a stretch of two games in the second half. Neither of the other two teams, which won their opening engagements last week, repeated. The Potomacs have protested the verdict, however, claiming that the O'Briens used an ineligible player.

ligible player.
Leading 16 to 2 in the sixth, the Vics were awarded a forfeit over the Murphy-Ames crew by Umpire Shoemaker when the Falls Church lads disputed a decision and banished players failed to leave the field. Schwartz Holds Calhoun Batters to 2 Hits.

Batters to 2 Hits.

The Lionels owe their victory largely to Pitcher Schwartz, who limited the losers to two hits, both collected by J. Pimper. Meddler held the winners to eight hits, but he and his mates wabbiled in the sixth long enough for the Lionels to count twice and break the 1-all deadlock. After Mates had worked well for the Langleys for seven innings he wavered, and Batson, who relieved him, stopped a vicious Ty Cobb attack that threatened to turn the tide. The Langleys then came from behind to clinch the verdict. Batson and Vignau contributed home runs to the winning cause. Langley, ABHOAHY Cobb. Auths and Dixie Pigs Turn in Easy Victories.

As THE Miller Aztecs split even in their twin engagement, losing to St. Joseph A. C. after trouncing the Brown's Corner Club, and the Auth and Dixle Pig teams were returned easy victors, the first six clubs in the Capital City League unlimited race are separated by a single gams. The Brentwood Hawks, who were idle yesterday, held the lead, but are but one game in front of the Aztec and St. Joe teams tied for fifth place.

The Auth, Dixle Pig and National Press Building Cardinals went into a deadlock for the runner-up position. The Cards were idle, but the Auths took a 15 to 4 decision over the Edmonds Art Store Co. toasers at College Park, while the Dixle Pigs were besting the Tremonts, 10 to 5, at Bladensburg.

The Aztecs started feebly against the Brown's Corner Nine, but finished strong, hitting the offerings of Goodman and Newman for nine runs in the last two innings. Baker's home run featured for the losers. McGuire shone at bat for the Aztecs.

Hitting hard and often behind the good pitching of Rhodes, the Authmen were not extended to defeat the Edmonds clan. Wiltahire, Lewis and Hoffman led the attack on the offerings of Elliott and Brown.

McCracken's wildness and ragged fielding by his mates aided the Barbecue lads to victory. Blackte Adair worked well on the hill for the victors. Watts got 5 safeties for the winners and Keoughs hit a homer for the Tremonts, to furnish the offensive features.

As a result of the sudden development of this flock of invalids, Manager Walter Johnson has to revise his Tuesday pitching plans, when the St. Louis Browns will open a fourgame series following an off day today. An example of what President Grifth has been pleading with league of ficials to rule against—the permitting of umpires to work (from within the diamond instead of back of second—cost the Nationals a run in the third inning yesterday. It hit Umpire Bull Guthrle and, according to rules prevented the runner from advancing even one base. As two were out at the time. Some of the umpires cover the bases from back of the inner works and apparently are able to see just as well and to be just as close to the plays as those who insist upon doing their guessing from positions within the infield. The present instructions to the umpires are that they may call 'em from wherever they believe they can work best. With the Nats getting few breaks this season, it had to be their luck for the play in question to come up with an infield worker on the job.

advance, and, although he was in trouble in both the seventh and eighth, was not accred on again until the ninth, when singles by West and Cronin netted a useless run.

Meanwhile, Burke had answered the shower call after Morgan had opened the fifth with a double, and had given way to Lloyd Brown. A double play helped the latter out of a hole in this frame and again in the sixth, when Falk doubled and Hodapp singled as starters, but he had nothing with which to fool the Indians in the ninth, when nine batters went to the tee and five mit and one walked. Among the bingless was a second double by Morgan and Averill's homer, which scored two ahead of him and knocked all of the competition out of the game.

Washington's hits netted seventeen bases and Joe Judge got four of these, including two doubles. West, Spencer, Cronin and Hayes were credited with two safeties aplece, with the first two named having a two-basger to show for their efforts while West also gave another exhibition of fancy fielding, contributing two catches out of the ordinary for anyone except him. In addition to his homer, which cleared the right-field garden wall, Falk cracked out two two-sackers, while Fonseca and Hodapp also were credited with three hits. Averill's homer, the only hit he made during the game, was a bounder off the wall near the center-field score-board — Cleveland's attack totalled 27 oass. Its defense was good but the only brilliant play was made by Fonseca to end the game. With Cronin on first, Spencer shot a liner toward right. The first-sacker made a great jump, stuck up his glove and the ball landed in it hard enough to become tangled in the webbing. He beat Cronin back to first for an uniassisted double play which sent the fans home talking to themselves.

A few of the more pretentious camps scorn the provincial look and present to the casual visitor specious residences in which are to be found all the comforts of home while the camper may enjoy the outdoors, the wide and green-rimmed rivers for which the Eastern Shore is famous and the levels fields, admirably suited for horseback riding.

Many of the camps for young folks are offering lessons in horsemanship under capable instructors, some of whom are former college poloists, and all of them have a fleet of canoes and small craft in which weekly races are on the rivers and bays. selors are, for the most part, college men and women experienced in the art of outdoor sports and living. Military discipline prevalls in both boys and girls camps, and daily hikes are compulsory in the majority of the establishments. Boy Scout troops from Baitimore, Washington, Wilmington and Philadelphia are now encamped in this area, in addition to the nonorganized groups. The life of the camps in this vicinity ranges from two weeks to two months. In Kent and Cecil Counties alone there are 23 camps and others will be set up before the summer season wanes. Dog and Cat, Companions of Girl, 10, Are Pals Despite Traditional Feud ON VIRGINIA HIGHWAY

For the last ten years, or all of their lives, these three have been pals. Born in the same year, they have grown up together until now they are inseparable. But while Louise Gray is a long way from maturity, Dillie, the cat, which she is shown holding, and Nero, the dog, are nearing the end of their spans of life.

Two Play Together Around Home of Mistress, Same Age as They.

Nero and Dilley are pals. They have been pals for ten years and both have served a common cause for the span of their lives. In their youth have served a common cause for the span of their lives. In their youth they frisked together on the grassy lawns at the Shady Oak Inn, near Forestville, playmates for little Louise Gray. For Nero is a dog and Dilley a cat. Now that their span of life is drawing to a close they still remain pals, but, like all old folk, they live mostly in memories.

pals, but, like all old folk, they live mostly in memories. Nero is a big Shepherd dog, with long, shaggy black hair. In his youth he was the terror of the neighborhood he was the terror of the neighborhood canines and ruled the spacious grounds around the inn with tooth and fang. No strange dog need step his wary foot upon Nero's domain. And right beside Nero was Dilley, also quite efficient in this claw-and-fang demonstration. Dilley was a big cat then, with sleek black coat.

In those days they were the boon companions of little Louise, and many the romp the three participated in. Now little Louise has grown to a miss of 10 and Nero and Dilley are aged and respected members of the animal world. Long ago they found that aging limbs and missing teeth were too great a handicap and retired to a comparatively noncombatant status.

The friendship of Nero and Dilley offen cause passing tourists to stop and inquire into this anomaly. Dogs and cats are hereditary enemies and at the average man would as soon expect to for find them living in friendy companionship as to see fire and water blending.

Many instances of dogs and cats tolerating each other because they live under the same roof are known, the useldom do they become boom companions as biese, two have.

Occasionally they play a little, but not much, and when Louise, who now is 10 years old also, comes down, their are content to lie at her feet, their minds busy with memories of a more active age.

Dilley likes to ride on Nero's ample back. When she is placed on top of Nero she will hang to the long hair and ride around in apparent enjoyment. Nero also seems to like it.

Nero is a much photographed dog. Hardly a day passes that some tourist doesn't snap him. Mr. Gray has received prints of the dog from all over than Nero, but every evening she hobble below the properties of the dog from all over than Nero, but every evening she hobble to make the properties of the dog from all over the united States. But Nero is camera shy. His picture has to be snapped with the new of the same the same to a status.

For ten years a single birthday cake with ten candles has sufficed for all three, Louise, Nero and Dilley, because each is 10 years old.

The Jazzmanians, conducted by Mr. Brusiloff, and the frozetes, led by Miss Vierdag, open proceedings with a Terpsichorean sparing number executed to the tune of "Nola," that might easily have gone into a second round. Zara Lee proved to be an exceptional acrobatic dancer, and Katherine Irwin, next to appear, disclosed a soprano voice of unusual beauty and power in "Deep solin the Arms of Love." The Gibson Sisters presented two solo dances, one a pedestal tap dance and the other the program's second demonstration that bones are superfluous in the feminine body. The third exposition of this theory was offered by the feminine half of the adagic team of Blanche and Elliott. Born and Lawrence repeated their earlier hit with "songs with gestures and dancing with feeling."

Bernard and Henri, announced as the feminine van and Schenck, lived up to the billing by stopping the show with "Some Sweet Day." "He's Not So Bad to Me" and "Everybody Loves My Boy." rendered at the piano in the V. & S. manner.

The cremonies were mastered in His agreeably pungent manner by Mr. Flaher, who led the Foxettes in the fur coat finale, presumably just to prove that the stage also is refrigerated.

There is no reason to suspect that it will be set down among the great pictures that Richard Barthelmess has brought to the screenand he has brought more than one—any more than it will be recorded among the articulate films that have failed to afford a generous measure of wholesome entertainment.

Barthelmess, it seems to me, gains little from audibility in this subject, while others in the cast gain much. This is one of the penalties an actor, who was superb in pantomine must pay to the new order of things. While the star's portrayal is natural and honest in the main, the climaxes in his present vehicle, to me, failed to strike fire. PALACE into one of her famous disrobing acts. She is simply a nice, sweet girl, trying to get along. The effect, in doubt, of true love.

Little Pat Delaney, of the circus, is enamoured of one Larry Lee, the wire-walking headliner of the show, an undiscerning poor idiot who can't see her for his wicked siren of a partner, Zara, who, in turn, loves another. You can see that this is no mere triangular affair. The weak Larry sinks to the depths upon learning of Zara's perfudy, but Fat brings him back to life and manhood. Then Zara reappears, and what happened the first time takes place again, such crisis occurring just as the act is being called. One has a feeling at the fadeout that if Zara will stay out of sight and sound Pat and Larry may be happy ever after—providing, of course, that they don't fail off the wire.

The circus atmosphere for all this is still well maintained, and Saturday night's audience was audible and enthusiastic in its appreciation. Clara, as always. Is diverting and easy to look upon. She does her talking with a lack of self-confidence that is pleasing and in a manner consistent with the character she portrays.

This is a statement which cannot be applied so truthfully to Kay Francis. Miss Francis is the possessor of one of the most charming voices yet to come through the microphone and she has shown signs of becoming the vamplire supreme of the screen. If the diction and social graces of her Zara, however, are trylical of the circus profession, then the ideas you and I have cherished of the dazzling serial artistes are woefully wrong.

Richard Arlen dees rather well with the wire-walking role. But, speaking of the wire-walking role. But, speaking of the wire-walker, can a man be clear-headed enough to make sincere and unmaudiln love a few short moments after falling forward in a drunken stupor? Merely a question from one who doesn't know.

With the exception of ill-advised use of music and dialogue at the same time, the Vitaphone accompaniment is well done. Miss White's songs, among which the most tuneful are "Watting for Love" and "Broadway Baby Doll," are very-well done. Three subtitles are effectively used to set apart what would, on the speaking stage, be called acts.

The scenes laid in the night club, while excellently done, are of a length entirely out of proportion to their importance and much extraneous dancing is introduced that is wholly foreign to the story. The sequences of the revue in progress are also well done, being mostly shot from vantage points in the orchestra and baloony and with but few overhead and wing views.

The film subsidiarres are comprised of Willie and Eugene Howard in an amusing comedy, "The Music Makers," directed by Brian Foy; releases of the Fox and Paramount News; and a trailer on "The Time, the Place and the Girl."

Charles Hampden, having last week proved his worth in the four-a-day, is held for a second week as guest conductor and soloist of the Earle Orchestra. He excellently sings Clarence G. Gartner's tuneful "Love is Mine" and Moyer's exquisite "Song of Songs," adding a few anecdotes by west of pleasant diversion.

The sorchestra, under the able baton of Daniel Breeskin, offers Arnold Johnson's symphonic jazz number, "Teardrops," and a mediey of old-time hits arranged by Ray Hart.
